(Course Description and Goals) What Am I Here To Learn?

The purpose of this class will be to learn how to apply principles of rhetoric to improve the student’s ability to communicate in a range of mediums. Specifically over the course of this class, we will explore how to support an argument in written, oral and visual formats by investigating a topic of the student’s choosing. The student will be expected to perform original research to produce a research paper, an oral presentation and a visual artifact, all of which will be expected to support an argument that the student is trying to make.

By the end of this course, it is the instructor’s goal to help the student to develop a strong grasp of the following concepts:

- understand the process necessary to compose in written, oral and visual mediums
- be able to create, produce and follow a design plan for a form of communication
- know how to apply various rhetorical concepts like ethos, logos and pathos to your own communications
- have the ability to analyze messages in various mediums to understand how rhetorical concepts are being applied to sway the message’s audience
- work in peer teams to review, critique and evaluate one another’s work
- create a final portfolio that presents your work and how it improved over time
- be able to reflect thoughtfully and critically to a range of objects
- feel comfortable talking about your opinion in a classroom setting

What Tools Do I Need/Have? (Course Resources)

In addition to time in the classroom, students will have access to and be expected to take advantage of a number of other resources from class websites, pdfs, textbooks and the JR Van Pelt Library.

Attendance
Participation with in-class discussion is an expected portion of this class and the course goals. Despite this, I will not be taking attendance nor will any of the points on the 1000 point grading scale be dedicated to specifically attendance. Your participation in class discussions however will be recorded using the Check Plus system of the Curve and thus not attending class will lead to you having fewer opportunities to earn Checks, which will negatively affect your grade.

If you know ahead of time that you will NOT be able to attend class, arrangements can be made to compensate for the loss of points possible for that day.

Respect for Fellow Students In-class
Due to the nature of the class, we will be talking about any number of issues, topics and areas of interest & study that may be considered potentially volatile. In-class discussion and debate will be encouraged, but attacking fellow students for their beliefs will not be tolerated and your grade will be negatively affected if I consider you have crossed the line. Our classroom needs to be a space for free and safe exchange of ideas and opinions, but I will not allow it to become a pulpit or a soap box.

University Policies
Academic regulations and procedures are governed by University policy. Academic dishonesty cases will be handled in accordance the University's policies.

If you have a disability that could affect your performance in this class or that requires an accommodation under the Americans with Disabilities Act, please see me as soon as possible so that we can make appropriate arrangements.
